

ECLIPSE ACTIVATION DATES FOR 2015

© Malvin Artley 2015

For the events that took place at the activations of eclipses by transiting planets, see table below. The dates listed in the left-hand column are the median dates for the Mars activations, which include activations for a total of 27 eclipses. The range for Mars activations is up to a week on either side of the median date. Eclipses will remain active for 4 –5 years, depending on a variety of factors. Given that we have between 4 – 6 eclipses every year, this accounts for the large number of them that were active during 2015. The actual eclipses are not listed, except in special cases and for 2015, listed after the table. Numbers in parentheses are the days of the month when the event took place. The activation dates are for Mars unless otherwise indicated. The Sun can also activate eclipses, but those dates are not listed. Planets other than Mars are highlighted. The activations by Pluto and the other planets are measured with a degree of orb from the eclipse point. Saturn, Uranus and Pluto activations are listed within a range of dates, as they move much more slowly than Mars. Information on the other eclipses are listed after the table. The highlighted events are the ones that received widespread media attention. The other events are where more than a few people lost their lives at the indicated event, and are largely terrorist-related.¹ Scientific breakthroughs are listed in italics.

1 Jan – 15 Feb Pluto Eclipse is from 4 Jan 11 (see below). It is the only eclipse Pluto activated all year. However, it did square the 4 Apr 15 eclipse from 4 Nov through the remainder of 2015 and went on to square the from 2 Dec for the remainder of the year. Note the mars activation dates in the range from those dates. Eclipses that took place in 2015:

4 Apr 15	14 ♃♌
28 Sep 15	4♌ ♃
20 Mar 15	29♌♃
13 Sep 15	20♌♃

The 20 March eclipse was conjunct an Aries point and its subsequent Mars activation signaled the Paris attacks, which have brought about rapid changes in the world view on terrorism and its handling. Hence, it is marked in red. Note that there were two other attacks the day before, which garnered little attention in the Western media. Uranus and Pluto were in a close square and Mars and Uranus were conjunct, indicating the disruptive and violent nature of the eclipse—also the capacity for breakthroughs in science and consciousness. Mercury was conjunct Neptune, indicating the deception involved in some of the events, but also the inspiration that can come from it. The eventual results of the eclipse will be revelatory as the next years will show. The last degree of Pisces indicates the closure of a larger cycle and the saving power of the eclipse. Even though the events might be violent, the end result is the waking up of the populace.

This was the only eclipse that Pluto directly activated all year. The eclipse point was at the midpoint of a stellium in Capricorn with the Sun, Moon, Mars and Pluto, which were all in a wide conjunction, indicating the powerful nature of the eclipse. The Sun, Moon and Mars were all square to Saturn. Pluto was conjunct the north node, indicating a fundamental change of direction and karmic nature of the event. The eclipse point is also semisquare (at the midpoint) of the Venus/Neptune square.

We see a Mars/Pluto conjunction square to Uranus. Venus was conjunct Saturn, which was sextile the Mars/Pluto conjunction. The Moon was conjunct Jupiter. All the eclipses shown involve the Uranus/Pluto square except for the 2011 eclipse, shown above. These eclipses indicate the change of direction in world affairs that we are seeing with their subsequent activations.

The eclipse axis formed, a t-square with Neptune. Mars formed a hard triangle with the square between Uranus and Pluto. The Sun was quincunx to Saturn. The activation of this eclipse signaled the downing of the Russian airliner over Sinai. As of this writing the causes of that crash are still not definitively declared.

The 8 Oct 14 eclipse, activated by Uranus, is shown below:

This eclipse, as well, displayed the Uranus/Pluto square, with Uranus conjunct the Moon, with Pluto forming the apex of a t-square with the full moon axis. There was a kite formed with the full moon axis as the baseline and with a trine between Mars and Jupiter. This particular eclipse brought some particularly significant scientific discoveries.
