

2018 ECLIPSES AND ACTIVATIONS

© Malvin Artley 2018

This page is under development and will be updated periodically

There are a total of 24 active eclipses for 2018. The Mars activations take place primarily in the last quarter of the year. There are four pairs of eclipses that get activated more or less simultaneously. These are in color coded cells in the table below. Uranus activates one of these pairs in the first two months of 2018. The 20 Mar 15 eclipse that signaled the Paris attacks in Nov 2015 is activated only once at the very end of the year. There are no Saturn activations this year. All activation dates are for Mars unless otherwise indicated. Solar activations are the actual dates of the eclipses and 180 days after, highlighted in violet on the dates. There are only 2 eclipses on critical eclipse degrees. Items in yellow highlight have not been uploaded to the site. Items in red highlight are eclipse dates.
