

MUNDANE RULERSHIPS

In looking at any mundane (event) chart, one moves from the individual to the collective in considerations. If we want to see the overall character of an event and the players in an event, we look at the event chart in isolation. If we want to see its effect on a country, then we look at the synastry between the event chart and the chart of a group or nation. What follows are general guidelines for interpreting mundane charts, and orthodox rulerships are generally used. Various astrologers' opinions will differ on specific points. These references are still being developed, so some areas may remain blank.

GENERAL NOTES

- For political events, such as coups, attacks, revolutions, war events, etc, the first house will reflect the person or group that is targeted, whether that is the populace or a specific group, as well as the purpose of the event. However, in coups for instance, the head of state will be the target, represented by the ruler of the tenth house. When no time of day for the event is known, one can substitute the Sun in coups, but that is not a sure indicator. The type of group and the reasons for the event are indicated by the sign that is rising. For example, the 9/11 chart had Libra rising, and it was meant to provoke a war, as well as being an act of war. It was aimed at destabilizing the country and it resulted in large insurance payouts and litigation, as well as calling on foreign alliances (partners) such as NATO countries to go to war in Afghanistan. The attackers (represented by Mars, the 7th house ruler) used transport (Mars was in the 3rd house) to carry out the attack . Mars was on the south node, meant to provoke the maximum of insecurity in the populace (represented also by the Moon, which Mars was opposite in the figure).
